

List of Treatments for Wave 4 & 5 Resonators

While most manufacturers of Rife devices opted to supply their customers with either a device with no treatments stored so that the customer has find and experiment with own treatments OR their devices have every imaginable treatment that are available on the Internet from sometimes dubious sources, Rife Health (Wave Technologies) however has spent the first 7 years of its existence as a company to test and experiment with different combinations of frequencies to find those that really are effective. When you purchase a Wave Resonator, you do not only purchase a hi-tech functional Rife instrument but also the peace of mind that you have a device with tested and effective treatments.

Our list is a compilation of treatments that have been included because of for their effectiveness. The Wave range of resonators can store many more treatments, but the 750 treatments stored on our devices are those that will offer the biggest chance of success.

Most resonators on the market have many more treatments stored on their devices but they are untested. The user is then confronted with literally hundreds of treatments for example for cancer which the manufacturers just downloaded from the Internet from dubious sources. It is then expected from the user to experiment with untested treatments to find the treatment that works. A user with a terminal disease has no time to experiment.

The beauty of Rife Health's resonators are that they are effective: Not only because they comply with the specifications of a real resonator but also because of the tested concise list of treatments. The user is therefore cautioned to refrain from adding any more treatments because Rife Health has tested their treatments and found that the following treatments are the most effective.

Broad-spectrum treatments

Rife Health is the only supplier of resonators in the world that has developed the so-called broad-spectrum treatments to address those ailments where a diagnosis is not clear or where medical treatment is not immediately available. The user of a Wave resonator is advised to first try to use a broad-spectrum treatment that will cover the symptoms of the ailment before using the specific treatment. If the user suffers for example from acne the user should first start treating the ailment with "Skin problems" rather than with acne. Many times a persistent ailment is misdiagnosed and that is why medication did not work. It may not be acne but another skin disease. By applying a broad-spectrum treatment such as "Skin Problems" one will address all possible causes of that skin disease.
