

Ayesha Osman is a Maternal Fetal Medicine Subspecialist and Head Clinical Unit of Obstetrics at Groote Schuur Hospital, affiliated to the University of Cape Town in South Africa.

She is highly motivated and committed to the pursuit of the improvement of Women's and Maternal health. She serves as a Provincial Assessor for the National Committee for Confidential Enquiries into Maternal Deaths and is the past Deputy Chair of the Society of Obstetric Medicine South Africa (affiliated to the International Society of Obstetric Medicine).

Her research interests are medical disorders in pregnancy with a particular interest in hypertensive disorders, cardiac disorders and veno-thromboembolic disease.

Qualifications: MBChB, MMed, MPhil (UCT), FCOG (SA), Certificate in Maternal Fetal Medicine (SA)