

Full name: Professor Kamilu Karaye

Affiliation: Department of Medicine, Bayero University & Aminu Kano Teaching Hospital, Kano, Nigeria.

Kamilu Karaye is a Professor of Medicine at Bayero University (BUK), and Consultant Cardiologist at Aminu Kano Teaching Hospital (AKTH), Kano, Nigeria. He is also affiliated to the Department of Public Health and Clinical Medicine of Umea University, and the Hatter Institute of Cardiovascular Research in Africa of University of Cape Town. Professor Karaye attended University of Jos (Nigeria) for his basic medical degree (BMBCh), Imperial College of Science, Technology and Medicine (London) for MSc Cardiology, and Umea University (Sweden) for PhD. He is a Fellow of West African College of Physicians (FWACP), Nigerian Cardiac Society (FNCS), Royal College of Physicians of London (FRCP, London), European Society of Cardiology (FESC) and American College of Cardiology (FACC).

He is a member of the first cohort of Emerging Leaders Program of the World Heart Federation. He is the Principal Investigator of the Peripartum Cardiomyopathy in Nigeria (PEACE) Registry, and the Pattern of Morbidities, Mortality and Healthcare Financing of Hospitalised Medical Patients in Hospitals: The MOHOPA study. He is also the national coordinator for Nigeria for the G-CHF registry, IVVE trial, INTER-CHF registry, and EORP on peripartum cardiomyopathy.

He is the Deputy Editor in Chief of Nigerian Journal of Cardiology, and the Vice President of Nigerian Cardiac Society. He is the "Wazirin Rogo", a traditional title in Kano State, Nigeria.

He has published many papers in peer-reviewed journals on various aspects of Cardiology and has received several honors.