Discovering Abilities

Direct Support Professionals Week

There are a group of individuals who play a crucial, yet often overlooked role in society-Direct Support Professionals. During the pandemic, we learned who the real essential workers were! These dedicated individuals provide invaluable care and support to people every day. They serve many roles in the lives of people with disabilities, helping them reach their goals and lead fulfilling lives. Their dedication, compassion, and tireless efforts deserve recognition and appreciation.

Direct Support Professionals Week was established in 2008, by the United States Congress, as a way to honor the dedicated service these incredible professionals provide to people. The goal was to raise awareness about the contributions and the vital importance DSPs make in the lives of people with disabilities.

This week (September 10-16, 2023) serves as a reminder of the important work they do and gives us the opportunity to celebrate their unwavering commitment to the people they serve. As we celebrate Direct Support Professionals week this September, take the time to express our gratitude, support, and admiration for these remarkable individuals. They make a difference in our world, and especially in the lives of the people Spring Meadow Resources serves.

Employment

Remembering Mary

It was with great sadness that we said good-bye to our friend and colleague Mary Ulrich. Mary passed away on July 12, 2023.

She started her career with Spring Meadow Resources in February of 1981. Her dedication to our program and the people we serve spanned over 40 years. She leaves a legacy that everyone who knew her can be proud of and hold with great respect. She will be missed.

THANK YOU!

We have been working with Jake TeSelle of Crooked Yard Hops in Bozeman this season. Many thanks to Jake for donating hops plants to Spring Meadow Resources for us to grow and harvest!
