Welcome to The Garden for All!

The Garden for All is a place in the heart of New Albany, Ohio where people come together to "Fight Hunger & Grow Community". We also grow on a three-acre organic farm in Johnstown, Ohio. All produce and flowers we grow go directly to area food pantries and community organizations. The Garden for All supports the following food pantries:

Franklin County: Healthy New Albany Food Pantry, Gahanna Residents In Need (GRIN), Motherful (Gahanna), and Broad Street Food Pantry (Columbus)

Licking County: Market Street Food Pantry (Newark), Faith Care Food Pantry (Johnstown), and Northridge Food Pantry (Johnstown)

Why do we do this work? According to the 2022 Census, nearly 38 million Americans lived in poverty that year. Hunger isn't selective. It can affect people from all walks of life, especially when you factor in things like unexpected recessions and pandemics. In fact, millions of Americans live so close to economic disaster they are only one job loss, a missed paycheck, or a medical emergency away from hunger or homelessness.

The problem doesn't lie in occasional hunger but pervasive hunger, along with the lack of basic nutrition, which can have dire consequences on a population. Hunger can affect our economy by decreasing productivity due to difficulty concentrating, low energy, or missing work due to illness. It increases our national healthcare costs and even lowers lifespans. Hunger impacts children and their ability to learn and attend school.

In Ohio alone, 1,391,290 people face hunger on an almost daily basis. Almost 400,000 of those are children, which can cause long-term health risks. These numbers make Ohio one of the states with the highest rates of food insecurity in the country.

Locally, the Ohio Association of Community Action Agencies reported that Columbus has the state's greatest concentration of suburban poor and that 12% of suburban Columbus residents live in poverty.

Your support is critical to our mission. Your support helps us grow healthy, fresh produce and cut flowers for area food pantries to support those in need. We could not do it without you!

Because we are providing fresh produce for others, safety is of the utmost importance. This orientation document provides important steps all volunteers must take to fulfill our mission and provide the safest produce possible.

FOOD & VOLUNTEER SAFETY

SURFACE & TOOL CLEANING

To support food safety, please sanitize the food packaging area before and after use. This includes tables, the scale, harvesting tools, packing crates, and harvest buckets.

Procedure

1. The surface should be brushed or rinsed to remove visible dirt and debris.
2. Use the food-safe sanitizer for the tables, scale, and any tables we use to package produce labeled in the kitchen. The sanitizer bottle is labeled “Food Safe Sanitizer” and has a pink liquid in the bottle.
3. Apply the cleaning solution and scrub the surfaces moving in the direction top to bottom for food prep areas.
4. Rinse the surface with clean water until all soap suds are rinsed away moving in the direction of top to bottom.
5. Wipe dry the surface with a clean paper towel or let the surface dry.

- Only use your knife or garden tool for its intended purpose.
- Please use garden gloves when using the knife.
- If the knife is dull or broken, please give it to a leader and do not use it.
- Carry knives with the sharp side down.

- Always cut away from yourself and watch your fingers.
- Never try to catch a knife if it falls.
