

Natasha Bullett-Afriyie Bio

Natasha Bullett-Afriyie is a graduate of Bowie State University where she studied Communications and Public relations. Currently Natasha is pursuing her master's degree at Alliance University in Organizational Leadership. Natasha has over 10 years' Experience in Healthcare; and is currently working in Project management with Clinical research. Post college Natasha has used her skills as a: Brand Manager, Speaker, Life Coach, and International Mentor to young girls in Ghana. Natasha has had several of her articles published in local newspapers as well as being a guest blog contributor. She is a dedicated wife and Mother of 3. She enjoys helping in ministry, volunteering, cooking, and spending time with her beloved family. Natasha has created a business called NBA The Purpose Pusher which offers career services to individuals trying to be or become marketable in the workforce. Natasha's life mission is to push individuals into their God given purpose by Uplifting, Inspiring, teaching, equipping, and helping provide resources that will propel them to their next level.